

SOME LESSONS ARE IN THE TEXTBOOK.
OTHERS LIVE IN THE SILENCES
WE NEVER SPEAK ABOUT

Social Science: Equality in India

A black and white illustration of a woman with dark hair tied back, wearing a sari and a bindi. She is looking towards the viewer with a slight smile. A speech bubble originates from her head, containing the text 'Can anyone tell me what equality means?'. The background is a simple, light-colored wall.

Can anyone tell me what equality means?

Social

It means... everyone is treated the same?

That's a start.
But equality on paper...isn't always equality in life.

Socia

Let us go on a journey

A grayscale illustration of a hand holding a scroll. The scroll is unrolled, revealing text. The hand is positioned on the right side, gripping the edge of the scroll. The scroll itself has a thick, dark border and a lighter central area where the text is written.

Stories You Won't See in Your Textbook

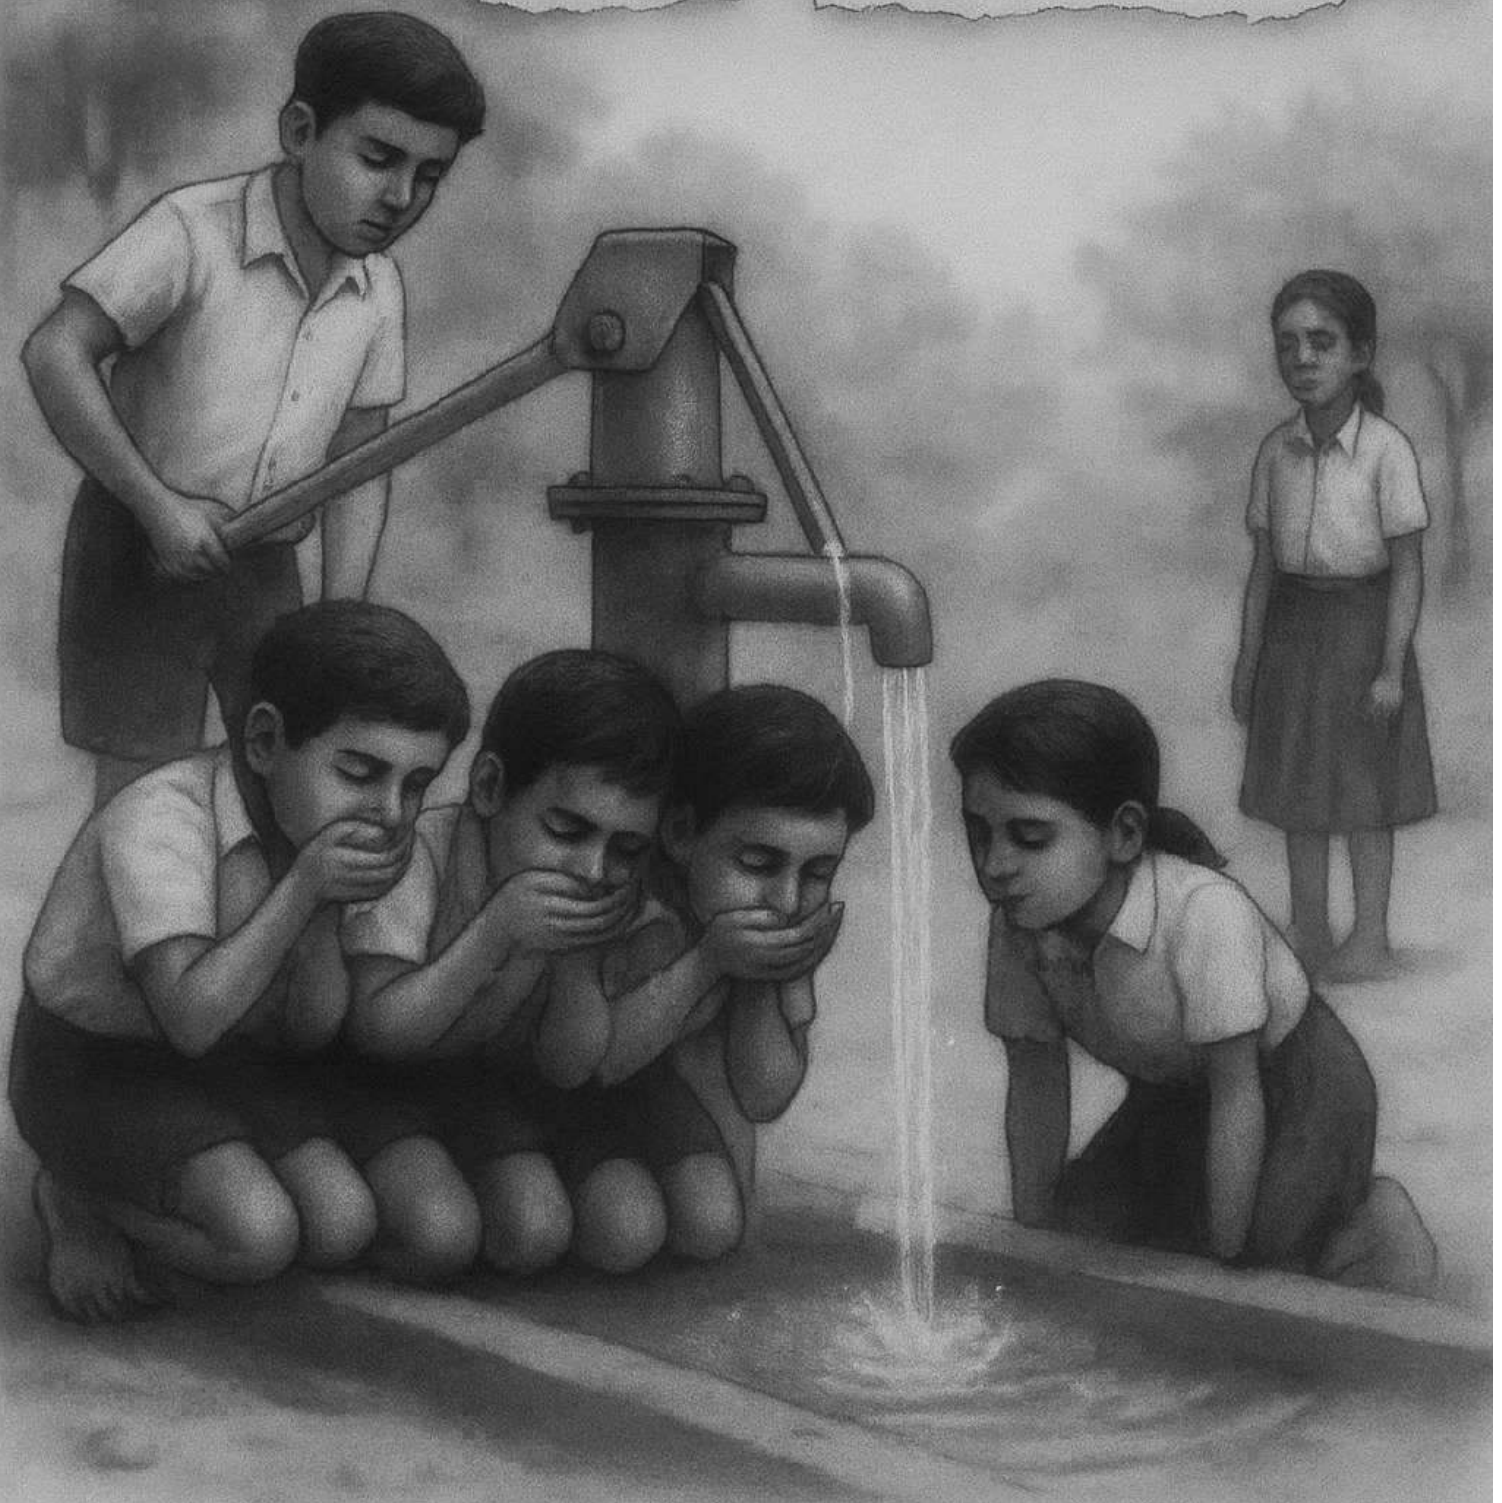

He's told to sit away... so his shadow doesn't touch their food.

Dalit Boy in Madhya Pradesh Drowns in Well After Being Denied Water from School Hand-Pump

Dalit Boy in Rajasthan Beaten to Death for Drinking from Teacher's Water Pot

Officer Denied Drinking Water in UP by Village
Head Because She's Dalit

Dalit Teacher Issued Notice for Drinking from Pitcher Reserved for 'Savarna' Colleagues in Gujrat

Every answer he gave was followed by a name that wasn't his.

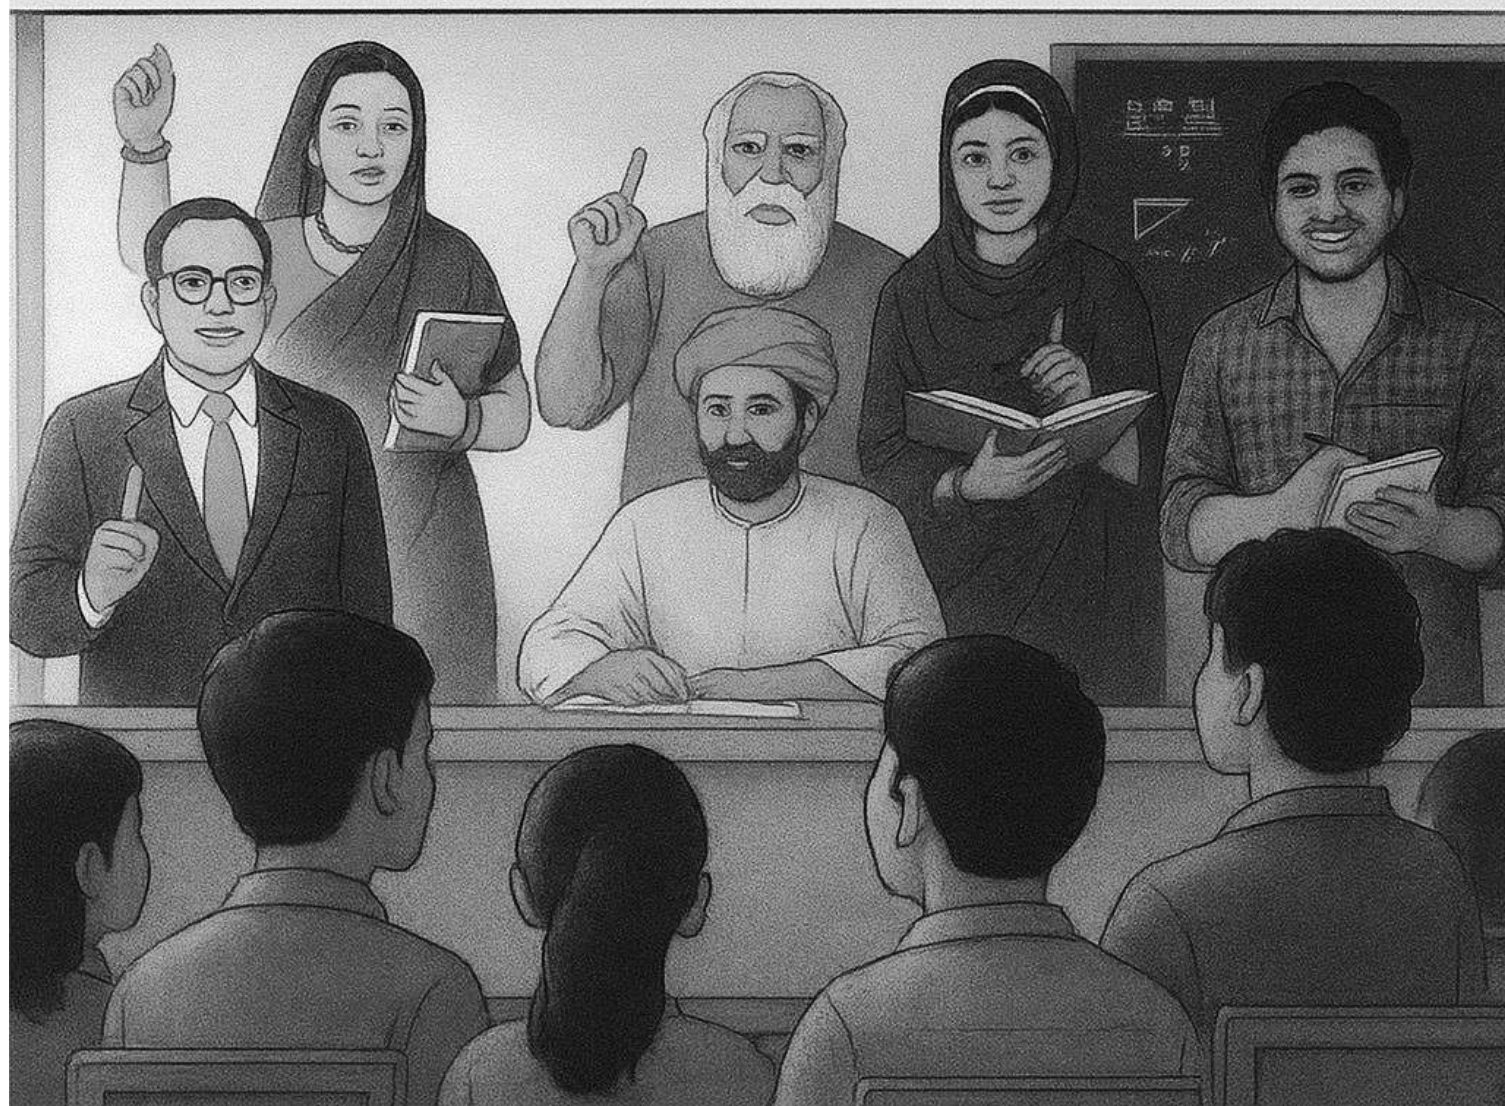

Before he could write a single word, the label had been written for him.

But... this can't still happen, right? We have laws!

We do.
But caste doesn't live in law books.
It lives in habits.
In what we accept as "normal".

Change doesn't begin in laws or speeches.
It begins in the courage to accept the truth, challenge the unfair and act towards equality.

The future of us
living together, we all will have to build it.

